

Semi-Weekly South Kentuckian.

VOLUME IX.

HOPKINSVILLE, CHRISTIAN COUNTY, KY., SEPTEMBER 27, 1887.

NUMBER 77

CHAS. M. MEACHAM. W. A. WILGUS.
PUBLISHED EVERY TUESDAY AND FRIDAY MORNING BY
MEACHAM & WILGUS,
PUBLISHERS AND PROPRIETORS.

SUBSCRIPTION RATES.
One copy, one year, strictly cash in advance. $1.00
One copy, six months. . . . . .75 No subscriptions taken on time and all papers tapped when out.
One copy free to any one sending us five early cash subscribers.

ROYAL

BAKING
POWDER
Absolutely Pure.

This powder never varies. A marvel of purity, strength and wholesomeness. More economical than the ordinary kind, and cannot be sold in competition with the multitude of low cost, short weight adulterated powders. Sold only in cans. ROYAL BAKING POWDER CO., 108 N. 3rd St., N. Y.

BUSINESS CARDS.
Jas. A. Young, M. D. Jas. A. Goss, M. D.
Drs. Young & Gunn,
HOMOEOPATHISTS
HOPKINSVILLE, KY.
Office Cor. 9th and Main.

A. P. Campbell,
DENTIST,
HOPKINSVILLE, - KY.
OPERATING A SPECIALTY.
Office over Mr. Franklin & Sons'.

M. B. KING,
Church Hill, Ky., Berkshire Hogs, Cotswold and outcross Sheep. Orders Solicited.
1-28-17.

Dr. I. N. VAUGHAN,
DENTIST,
OFFICE—South Main St., One Square
From Phoenix Hotel, N. Y.
HOPKINSVILLE, - KY.

Dr. G. E. Medley
DENTIST.
Offers his Professional Services to the Public.
Office over Kelly's Jewelry Store, No. 8-12 NORTH MAIN STREET.

SAM HAWKINS & CO.
TONSorial Artists.
Have the latest establishment in this city having run for over 30 years and their success is an evidence of the trust and confidence placed in them by the public. Having recently refitted their shop with new sets of chairs, they especially invite the public to call on them for anything in their line. No space will be spared to give all satisfaction. Call on them. Remember the place—Hawkinsville street, corner 11th St. Formerly Nashville street.

A LA BELLE JARDINIERE
L. Fritsch,
FASHIONABLE MERCHANT TAILOR,
And Importer of Fine Cloths & Suits, No. 391 First St., Evansville, Ind.
Feb. 17

Andrew Hall,
DEALER IN
Granite and Marble
MONUMENTS
AND LIME,
COR. VIRGINIA AND EIGHT STREETS,
HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

FIRE and TORNADOES Insure their property in INSURED
WITH
AUSTIN D. HICKS
"INDEMNITY IS MY MOTTO."

THE WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, GREENSBORO COUNTY, W. VA., THE MOST CELEBRATED OF ALL THE MOUNTAIN RESORTS.

And one of the oldest and most popular of the American Water Cure Plants. Opened for the season JUNE 1. Elevation above the water, 1,000 feet; sulphur springs, 2,000 feet.
Send for pamphlet describing bygienic advantages. H. F. KIRK, Superintendent.

BETHEL
Female College.
HOPKINSVILLE, KY.
The Fall Term will open on MONDAY, AU-GUST 28, 1887. An experienced faculty. Thorough instruction and liberal as to terms. For information call on or address
J. W. RUST,
HOPKINSVILLE, KY.

ABNORMAL APPETITE.

How Young Animals Acquire a Taste for All Kinds of Unnatural Things.
Unnatural methods of rearing young animals pervade the whole digestive system to such an extent that many never fully recover after the power of digestion or the faculty of selecting proper food, which is so generally believed to be an inherent instinct of the brute creation, and makes them lifelong victims of dyspeptic craving, which they are never able to satisfy.
I am convinced that the disgusting desire for all sorts of unclean things (old bones, old boots, tops which did service in cleaning stables all winter, and old horse-droppings saturated with manure) will never out and decayed, is due to the cause above indicated. My attention was directed to this subject years ago, and it has been one of aiding interest to me. I found many cases where the feeding of bran or bone meal apparently led to a cure, and this was held to prove the general correctness of the popular theory that it was the result of lack of phosphates in the food. But such cases are almost invariably affected favorably by any change of food, and corn-meal has been known to have the same effect in other similar cases. I have never found evidence in favor of the phosphate theory which is not stronger in favor of the theory of impaired digestion.

The calf begins to show the end almost as soon as it is born; in a great many cases before it is three days old.
The natural food of the young calf is its mother's milk, and it is able to digest that in the milk-stomach without other preparation than comes with the act of sucking. But all other food needs the same preparation in the mouth and other organs of digestion in the young calf that it does in the aged cow. I have never been able to discover evidence that cooking in any way improves food for calves, and when it is made up in the popular form of the day into porridge, gruel or other drinkable concoction, it is not only unprepared, but it is unfitted for digestion. But the largest part of the calves of the country are raised on this prepared food. Some of them have hay or grain which is somewhat extinguished by the fire. Some are kept in most filthy quarters with nothing to exercise their jaws upon but fence-boards and the edges of their sour milk-troughs. They suck the ears of their mothers and in that way keep up a partial fast of saliva, and so continue in their desperation they chew them into masses of festering sores. Perhaps it would not be quite true to say that all the home-chevrons and their afflicted mates are legitimate products of some system of rearing calves.
But we occasionally run upon a man who raises extra fine calves which are never troubled with sores or any of the common ailments. No calf of his ever gets any thing to drink but plain skim-milk and clear, clean water. He feeds dry hay liberally and dry grain sparingly, but he never gives him any thing but the natural food. Beginning with bran, middlings or oats as soon as the calf will take it he increases the quantity without material change of quality for his cow-calfves.
But the steer-calves, whether intended for early or late slaughter, get their food just as fast as they are able to eat it. The changes are always so gradual as not to disturb the digestion and every once in a while he holds him. He does not hesitate to feed husked meal or cotton-seed meal as he sees occasion, but he always extends it very largely with the coarsest bran in the market. In short, he adapts all his feeds in a manner to compel the exercise of every organ of digestion to the largest possible extent, but he never puts upon one organ the office of another. His calves do not acquire bad habits and none of them have ever been known to chew bones or fence-boards. —O. S. Davis, in N. Y. Tribune.

CORN AND COB MEAL.

Interesting Experiments Recently Made at the Iowa Agricultural College.
An experiment was recently tried at the Iowa Agricultural College on the respective merits of clear corn meal and corn and cob meal together for fattening pigs.
Pigs of the same breed and same age, and as nearly as possible the same weight, were selected and fed one week to accustom them to the food selected. They were then given all they would eat of clean, half of them of corn meal and half of corn and cob meal, the grain being carefully weighed and also the hogs at the end of each week for two weeks, when they were sold.
The corn and cob meal, 70 pounds of pork per bushel and 12.05 pounds of clear corn meal made 11.07 pounds to each hog. The hogs were sold at $3.80 per hundred-weight and gave 45.79 cents per bushel for the corn meal and the cob, and 41.34 cents for the clear corn. The experiment was repeated with a lot of hogs in the early stages of the corn and cob meal, and 41.92 cents for the corn meal, reckoning pork at $3.80.
The reason why the corn and cob meal seems to do better is explained by some writers on the theory that the mixed meal is lighter in its stomach and the animal is thereby better digested. It is quite certain that there is but little nutriment in the cob if indeed there is any. However the above with many other experiments in the same line seem to confirm the superiority of the corn and cob meal for fattening hogs. —Horn's Dairyman.

A resident of Americus, Ga., says "Thursday evening I saw a curiosity in the shape of a bird-cloud. It appeared to be about 500 feet high, and looked like an inverted funnel. The cloud seemed to be forty or fifty yards wide, and its apex extended to a point some five hundred feet high. It was whirling with frightful rapidity, and went straight up out of sight. It was about two miles and a half northwest of Americus."

SANTA CRUZ ISLAND.

Island of the Charns of the Most Mental Spot in the Pacific.
Less than thirty miles distant from the western seaboard of these practical, matter-of-fact United States of America lies an island which, in the picturesque beauty of its scenery and the nationality and language of its inhabitants, might almost lead one to believe that in some mysterious manner it had been uprooted from the bosom of the classic Mediterranean and transplanted to the waters of the Pacific. Like the storied Isles of Capri and Ichia, its mountains rising here and there abruptly from the sea, surround their rocky walls, their towering battlements, their stupendous cliffs in water as deeply blue, as wonderfully limpid as that which elicits exclamations of enthusiastic delight from the tourist visitors to the Blue grotto. These mountains bluish as wraiths to the evening and evening kisses of the sun as those which look down upon the Bay of Naples; the sky above them is as rich in coloring as the famous sky of Italy, and the dwellers in this beautiful, almost unknown spot are natives of that sunny land.

An Italian fishing boat once bore me to the island. All day we floated in most idly upon the bosom of a tranquil sea. The breeze that in the early morning had gently distended the light canvases of the quaint lateen sail died away, having wafted us scarcely two leagues from the mainland, and there we lay basking in hot sunshine—though it was in December—gazing with placid enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant mountains, and nothing the ever-changing wondrous tints that flowed over each and all of these. Only the faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the splashing downward-plunge of a baking shark, affrighted by our vicinity, the flapping of the sail, broke now and then the profound silence. Then, long before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed
over each and all of these. Only the
faint blowing of a sleepy wind, the
splashing downward-plunge of a bak-
ing shark, affrighted by our vicinity,
the flapping of the sail, broke now and
then the profound silence. Then, long
before this last hour, a sea breeze from
the mainland, and there we lay
basking in hot sunshine—though it
was in December—gazing with placid
enjoyment upon sea and sky and distant
mountains, and nothing the ever-
changing wondrous tints that flowed over each

Colorow and his hostile Utes have been returned to their reservation and have promised to behave themselves in the future.

Mrs. Ada C. Bittenbender, a female lawyer, is a candidate for Judge of the Supreme Court of Nebraska. She is making an active personal canvass, with good prospects of success.

The Greenbrier White Sulphur Springs, in West Virginia, with all the personality, have been sold to W. A. Stuart for $57,700. The property is well worth double the price paid.

Dr. A. W. Smith, an old bachelor of Owen county, eloped with Mrs. Tennessee Slickbottom, a dashing widow, and they were married. The giddy young things ran off just to be romantic.

Steve Flynn shot Joe Brannon, probably fatally, at Tatesville, Pulaski county, in a row over some hauling. In the same county Lewis Bryant killed Jas. Love at Barren Fork mines, and a young man named Horn was killed by the cars, all the same day.

J. A. Stewart, a drug clerk of Wichita, Kan., has been sentenced to 17 years and 4 months in jail and fined $2,800 for violating the prohibition law of the State. He pleaded guilty to 2,800 judgments. His employer, who was also indicted, has disappeared.

Gen. Win. Preston died at Lexington Wednesday, aged 71 years. He was a colonel in the Mexican War, a member of the last Constitutional Convention, served two terms in Congress, was appointed Minister to Spain in 1855, was Confederate Minister to Mexico in 1863 and afterwards a Major General in the Confederate Army. In 1869 he served in the State Legislature. He was one of the largest land owners in the State.

Some fellow fond of fighting started the recent Democratic Convention of Massachusetts by showing that 3,828 of the 4,514 Massachusetts people in the employ of the Government are Republicans, although the National Administration has been Democratic for two years and a half. These enemies of the Administration are annually paid salaries amounting to $5,000,000.

The Callahan Democrat announces itself as opposed to "Mr. Beck, the Irish Senator from Frankfort," and in favor of Hon. E. Dudley Walker, of Hartford, for Senator. In common with all Western Kentucky he would like to see the next Senatorial election come to this end of the state, but it is hardly possible at this late date to organize successful opposition to Senator Beck, who, by-the-way, is a Scotchman and lives in Washington and not in Frankfort, though he formerly lived at Lexington.

The hotly contested election in Davidson county, Tenn., last Thursday, on the proposition to subscribe $500,000 to the Tennessee Midland Railroad, was defeated by about 500 votes. The proposition failed by that number of votes to get the requisite three-fourths. The L. & N. Railroad conducted the fight against the new road. The Nashville American advocated and the Banner opposed the proposition. The American claims that illegal votes were cast against it and the Midland will rebut its proposition, which under the law can be again voted on after 30 days. The whole contest will therefore be fought over again before the end of this year.

Scribner's Magazine for October has for its leading article a richly illustrated description of "The Paris School of Fine Arts," by Henry O. Avery, who is a graduate of that institution, and therefore writes from abundant knowledge and with true appreciation. The article opens with a brief sketch of the founding and growth of the school, describes the architectural beauties of the buildings, and gives an interesting insight into the methods of instruction, and the system of prizes which creates such intense competition among the thousands of students. The illustrations were made from the handsome photographs of the buildings, which are exclusively made by the French Government.

The following officers were elected for a term of one year at the meeting of the Grand Lodge of Knights of Pythias, at Lexington, last week:

- W. N. Rudy, of Mayfield, S. P. G. C.
H. H. Abernathy, of Hopkinsville, G. C.
John W. Carter, of Owensboro, G. V. C.
W. C. Quibby, of Dayton, G. P. D.
Dr. J. W. Pryor, Lexington, G. M. A. A.
Wade Skellum, of Louisville, G. K. O. K. S.
George Monz, of Louisville, G. M. O. E.
George Glendon, of Covington, G. I. G.
Leonard Griggs, of Ballsville, G. O. G.
Geo. Fawcett, of Newport, Supreme Representative for four years.
W. W. Blackwell, of Henderson, Supreme Representative for two years.
Board of Grand Lodge Trustees: W. O. Ford, of Covington; Lewis Rosenwatter, of Fulton; and Julius Johns, of Louisville.

DEADLY CHOLERA.

THE ASIATIC SCOURGE BROUGHT TO NEW YORK HARBOR BY THE SHIP ALESIA.

Epidemics of the Past.

New York, Sept. 23.—Asiatic cholera was brought to this port this morning by the steamer Alesia, which comes from the cholera-infected ports of Italy. It comes in its worst, most virulent form, and death was the sure, quick result of an attack. The Alesia sailed from Naples on September 3. When nine days out from the port the first case, that of Luigi Maria, a steamer passenger, was discovered by the ship's doctor. He lingered along for three days in agony and died. On the following day Paul Antonio Baldamara, another steamer passenger, died of the same plague. Both were promptly buried at sea. From that time almost every day until the ship arrived in port, a death occurred, and all received

THE SAME SEA BURNAL.

There were eight deaths in all. The others were Jean Nivoli and Jean Shumoa, sailors, and steamer passengers Serafin De Lio, Anna Netreger, Graciosa Mettoo and Maria Antonio Seak Yenia.

When the Alesia arrived off quarantine, Health Officer Smith boarded her and learned these facts. He also found that the ship's surgeon had diagnosed four other cases of steamer passengers sick with the disease. The general agent of the Falco Line, J. Terkne, at No. 11 Broadway, was notified, and the Quarantine Commission, Mr. Terkne and E. S. Melton, Secretary of the Quarantine Commission, at once proceeded to quarantine. An extended examination by Health Officer Smith resulted in the discovery of four additional cases on the vessel, which had apparently developed during the day. The ship was at once ordered to the lower bay. The sick were conveyed to the HOSPITALS ON SWINBURNE'S ISLAND, and the remainder of the 561 steamer passengers were transferred to the hospitals on Hoffman's Island. The three cabin passengers on board, together with the forty-five surviving members of the crew, were also transferred to Hoffman's Island by the Castle Garden transfer boat. Of the sick ones three were children and their mothers went with their babies weeping violently.

The steamer Alesia, Captain Valat, sailed from Naples when the cholera was raging in that city and in the vicinity, and in an even worse form in other Italian ports in Sicily. Those who were sick got aboard at Naples. The other ports at which she took passengers and merchandise were Marcella, France; Genoa, Naples and Palermo. It is thought that some of the cases originally came from Sicily.

President Bayless, of the Health Board, is not at all alarmed over the outbreak of cholera upon the Alesia. It is too late in the season, he says, to worry. The department is in good shape to deal with the disease. In the event of an epidemic the board would have $50,000 at their command. The present Health Board was organized to meet the epidemic of 1866. The scourge had visited New York in 1848, 1849 and in 1854-55. The last visitation aided in the discovery of the true nature of the disease, and it gave way to a calmer view. Nevertheless, the news in November, 1865, of the arrival of a cholera ship from Hamburg, caused consternation. Strict quarantine kept the disease out, but the following April brought half a dozen steamships with cholera-stricken passengers. The Virginia was first, with thirty-one cholera deaths, followed by the England, with 220 deaths out of 1,200 passengers. The latter arrived April 20, 1866. Ten days later the first case occurred in New York. In that year the disease killed 1,212 persons in this city, and was the last visitation.

Louisville Gets the $1,000 Prize at Evansville-Hopkinsville Given a Small Slice.

EVANSVILLE, IND., Sept. 23.—Fully 75,000 persons were present and witnessed the sham battle at Camp Farago today. The twenty-acre parade ground was so packed at the hour assigned for the commencement of the battle that it was an hour before it could be sufficiently cleared to make room for the battalions to take up their positions, and it was not until the engagement actually began that it was finally cleared by the artillery.

The battle lasted an hour, and wrought the feelings of the veterans up to the highest pitch. The battle was declared drawn when 20,000 rounds of ammunition had been exhausted. Two men were injured. In a hand to hand conflict over the possession of a battery. One Rogers was knocked senseless with a clubbed rifle, and John Lyman was burnt in the face by powder, but not seriously.

This morning the contests for prizes were completed, and to-night at dress parade the results were announced: Infantry drill, first money, $1,000, to the Louisville Light Infantry, Capt. Grubbs; second money, $500, to Company A, First regiment, 1. N. G., Capt. Brown. Zouave drill, first money, $500, to St. Louis Emerald Cadets, Capt. Fland; second money, $100, to Lincoln Zouaves, Nashville, Capt. Hoyer; third place, no prize. Rifle Zouaves, Indianapolis, Capt. Draper. Artillery drill, first money, $500, to Rockville Light Artillery, Capt. Stevenson; second money, $300, to Burns' Light Artillery, of Nashville, Capt. Berry. Special prize of $50 in Infantry drill to Baltimore Guards, of Hopkinsville, Ky. Monarch Rifle company.

1827-1887.

Mr. and Mrs. Kirtley Twyman Celebrate Their 60th Wedding Anniversary.

On Sept. 24th, 1827, Mr. and Mrs. Kirtley Twyman were married in this city, the groom being in his 26th year and the bride a little more than "sweet sixteen." On last Saturday evening, surrounded by children, grand-children, great-grand-children, other relatives and many friends, the now venerable couple celebrated the sixtieth anniversary of their marriage. The following is a list of their descendants who were present:

Children.—Jno. A. Twyman and wife, Jas. A. (Dick) Twyman and wife and Mrs. Lucy J. Chastain and her husband, S. E. Chastain.

Grand-children.—Mrs. L. W. Hardy and husband, T. J. Hardy, and three children; J. K. Twyman, wife and two children; H. W. Twyman, J. W. Twyman and G. L. Twyman; Mrs. Carrie Chastain and husband, Joo Chastain, Jr.; Mrs. Emma T. Eccles and husband, Chas. I. Eccles, and one child.

Other connections.—Mr. Geo. O. Thompson, Mr. J. S. Chastain, Sr. and wife; Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Price and two daughters; Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Hall and one child; Mrs. Sarah Means, Mr. and Mrs. J. P. Braden, J. B. Galbreath, Jos. Owen and W. S. Boale.

Invited guests.—Mr. L. T. Templeton, Capt. and Mrs. D. R. Beard, Mrs. E. Guyon, Mr. and Mrs. W. L. Trice, Prof. J. W. Rust, Mr. and Mrs. J. O. Rust, Mr. John B. Trice, Mr. and Mrs. W. F. Randle, Rev. and Mrs. J. N. Prestridge, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Meador, Mrs. M. Buckner, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Rogers, Messrs. R. F. West, S. C. Mercer, Julo Mercer, J. F. Chastain and Chas. M. Meacham. At about 8:30 o'clock Mr. and Mrs. Twyman were conducted into the spacious hall and Prof. Rust read a biographical sketch of the aged couple. Mr. Twyman was born in Barren county, Aug. 14, 1827, and came to this place when a young man, and shortly afterwards met and married Miss Elizabeth H. Thompson, who was born April 13, 1811. They are both still hale and hearty and bid fair to live many years more. During his long life Mr. Twyman has been actively identified with the interests of Hopkinsville. For many years a brick-mason, he has worked on a large majority of the brick buildings of the city and is still able to work at his trade, though he no longer ventures to work on high buildings. He has filled the offices of magistrate, constable and deputy sheriff. For many years he has been prominent in the order of Odd Fellows and both he and his wife have nearly all of their lives been consistent members of the Baptist church. Since coming to Hopkinsville in his young manhood, when the place was a mere village in the woods, Mr. Twyman has lived here continuously, with the exception of six years he lived in Cadiz.

After the sketch containing these facts and eulogizing the venerable couple had been read, Mr. W. F. Randle, stepped forward and said: Bro. TWYMAN:—I am before you now, the representative of Green River Lodge, No. 51, I. O. O. F., of which you have long been an honored member. Your brethren are forcibly impressed with the fact that your daily walk in this community for more than three score years has exemplified the grand principles this worthy order endeavors to inculcate. They feel that on this, the sixtieth anniversary of your marriage, they should join your kindred and friends in expressions of joy and gratitude, that the Giver of all good has dealt so kindly with you both. They, as well as this community, are cognizant of the fact that your life has exhibited a well-grounded faith in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. That your object has been the dissemination of the principles of benevolence and charity, the practice of "Friendship, Love and Truth," the protection and relief of the widow and orphan, and the elevation of man in the moral, social and intellectual world. To love and honor such a man is one of the aims of this institution.

And here, and now, in token of the brotherly love and affection which your brethren of their Lodge bear you, I present you this chain with this medal. Upon this medal is this inscription: "From Green River Lodge No. 51, To K. Twyman, Sept. 24th 1887." It also bears three links, representing the three links of our beloved order—Friendship, Love and Truth—which bind man to man, and Faith, Hope and Charity which bind humanity to God. Though this medal represents the highest value in the world of commerce, and is the most precious known to-day, yet it is but a feeble expression of the feeling your brethren have for you. An constant use tends to brighten this metal, so the constant use of your influence has served to brighten your own character and that of others who have imitated your example. And now I beg you to accept this, with the request from your brethren that you wear it daily, and their sincere prayer is that our Heavenly Father may continue his blessings to both of you and that you may see many returns of this happy anniversary. With a heart overflowing with emotion the old gentleman rose and returned his thanks for the gift and also thanked his friends for the honor and respect shown him, concluding by expressing a hope that all present might live to enjoy the blessings of a long life, free from hardships and troubles. The entire company then repaired to an adjoining room where the tables arranged in the form of a T were bountifully supplied with substantial and delicious of every description. The meats, the salads, the cream, the sherbet, cake and fruits were all tempting to the appetites of the guests and they partook with a relish that showed their hearty appreciation. The decorations of the table were very beautiful and the cakes were especially handsome. The evening was an exceedingly agreeable and pleasant one to all. The company dispersed about 10 o'clock. Among the present received by Mr. and Mrs. Twyman were the following:

A cake each from Mrs. Jennie Clark Mrs. E. H. Price, Mrs. Andrew Hall, Mrs. M. Buckner, Mrs. Jas. A. Twyman, Mrs. Jno. A. Twyman, Mrs. J. S. Chastain, Sr., and Mrs. J. P. Braden; Mrs. J. C. Woodbridge, silk handkerchief; Mrs. W. L. Trice, hand-some pin; Mr. J. P. Braden, $2 in gold; Mrs. S. E. Chastain, tablecloth; W. L. and J. B. Trice, pair blankets; Mr. J. S. Chastain, Sr., moccasins; Mr. J. S. Chastain, Jr., pair gold frame spectacles; Rev. and Mrs. J. N. Prestridge, water set; Mrs. Chas. Eccles, cups and saucers; Mrs. J. W. McPherson, silk handkerchief; Mrs. M. N. Roach, pair vases; Dr. and Mrs. J. A. Young, salt and pepper stands; Mrs. F. Rogers, handkerchief. Among those present not named above was Phil Glass, col., who waited on the table at the supper following the marriage ceremony of the venerable couple, sixty years before.

A Novel Set.

While I am not a betting man, said F. J. Cheney, of the firm of T. J. Cheney & Co., I considered it my religious duty to make that follow a bet, you see he was about dead, and I guess he would of died before spring, if I had not got him on the bet. You know some men had rather lose their life than lose a hundred, well he was one of that kind, and we both came near being out, but I saved my hundred and it only cost him ten dollars. How's that? Its sent for one day and said the doctors had all given him up to die, with the catarrh. I told him that I would bet him $100 that Hall's Catarrh Cure would cure him or I would give him $100 if it failed. He took the latter proposition. This was three months ago, you see how he looks now, don't you, as well as any one, and a dandy. —American, Toledo, O.

Ho! For The Races!

—THE BIGGEST RACE OF THE SEASON IS THE RACE FOR—

BARGAINS AND NEW AND ELEGANT GOODS,

Which we have received and which are arriving daily. We are showing in our IMMENSE DOUBLE STORE ROOMS.

—THE MOST ELEGANT AND ELABORATE AND THE LARGEST STOCK OF—

Clothing, Dry Goods, Boots and Shoes, Hats and Caps, Ladies' and Gents' Furnishings, Trunks and Notions.

—THE FINEST AND LARGEST STOCK OF—

CLOAKS, JACKETS AND SHORT WRAPS

In Seal Finish, Silk Worsteds and Cashmeres, Misses' and Children's Cloaks, Etc., ever shown in Hopkinsville before. We have an Elegant Seal Finish Short Wrap worth $18.50 which we are selling at $12.50 and others in same proportion. Before you buy your Cloaks give us a call and we will save money for you.

REMEMBER THE "OLD RELIABLE,"

Mammoth Double Stores No. 13 and 15, Cor. 8th and Main Sts.

M. FRANKEL & SONS,

PROPRIETORS

DO YOU WANT THE EARTH?

—We can't give you that, but this week we will give you the best bargains on earth in—

MEN'S AND BOYS' TAILOR FITTING CLOTHING

And with a Line of Bargains extending from the front to the rear door. —Honest Quality and Lowest Prices in the force which gives life and motion to our fresh ever changing stock of

GENTS' FURNISHING GOODS.

"With like success we try again. The truth is not disguised, The men hear of our Bargains And are very much Surprised."

Call in and See Us, 2 Doors from Bank of Hopkinsville.

THE ONE PRICE CASH STORE.

PYE & WALTON,

HOPKINSVILLE, KENTUCKY.

Ben Johnson Killed by the Cars—A Hopkinsville Young Lady Married at Earlington.

CROFTON, Ky., Sept. 26, 1887.—Ben Johnson, who has been working on the section at Mannington for some time, fell from the hand car Thursday and was run over by it, receiving injuries from which he died Saturday night.

There have been four additions to the Christian Church here this week. W. H. Martin, J. J. Nixon, C. M. and John M. Dull returned from Evansville yesterday and from the appearance of the quaterion, we judge they had what is called "a good time."

Married, in Earlington, Ky., at the residence of Mr. Joe Ford to-day, Mr. W. F. Anderson, to Miss Belle Harrison, formerly of your city.

Cupid, with his well-aimed arrow, is no respecter of persons, and in this land of pretty faces no man is safe. He springs his bow and the arrow finds a lodgment in our hearts and then with his net composed of all the whimsicalities and peculiarities of courtship we are finally brought face to face with the preacher with that other somebody and the awful sentence goes forth, "What God hath joined together let not man put asunder," etc. Thus are we poor mortals made victims day by day.

But when a man is conquered by such an onslaught as Cupid has sent forth to conquer Mr. Anderson and bring him to terms of capitulation on the field of matrimony we are satisfied that it would be ignominious for man to longer fight and he has acted wisely and well to succumb and sign the articles of peace so generously proffered him. His bonnie bride is amiable, as noble as intelligent and he is to be congratulated on the successful termination of his wooing. We extend congratulations and hope their future will be filled with happiness far beyond their brightest painted anticipations.

There will be a "Blue and Gray" reunion at Paducah Oct. 19. Eugene Wilson's residence, near Hardtown, was burned. Loss $3,000, insurance $1,500.

CONSUMPTIVE. Have you Cough, Phlegm, Asthma, Indigestion, Croup, PARKER'S GINGER TONIC without delay. It is a powerful blood purifier and a tonic for all ailments of the blood and system. It is a powerful blood purifier and a tonic for all ailments of the blood and system. It is a powerful blood purifier and a tonic for all ailments of the blood and system.

GUS YOUNG, —DRAWER IN— HARDWARE, GUNS AND CUTLERY. Pistols, Fishing Tackle, Hunting Outfit, Iron Wagon Timbers, Horseshoes, Bells and Ropes, Sixth Street, opp. Plasterers Shop, Hopkinsville, - Ky.

THE FIRST ANNUAL FAIR

OF THE

Christian Co. Driving Park,

Hopkinsville, Ky.,

Wednesday, Thursday, Friday and Saturday,

Sept. 28, 29, 30 and Oct. 1.

The grounds are beautifully located just West of town on the CADIZ ROAD.

The Buildings are all new and substantial. Every foot of the track can be seen from the GRAND STAND.

The Ring Stock Show the first day is open only to Christian County Stock.

No charge whatever for Private Vehicles and Horses to enter the Grounds. The Ladies are especially invited. This is a new Fair, run upon new and advanced ideas.

COME OUT THE FIRST DAY AND GIVE THE NEW FAIR A GOOD "SEND OFF." NO OTHER FAIR WILL BE HELD IN

Christian County This Year.

ADMISSION: Grand Stand (Men) - - - 50 Cents. Grand Stand Ladies and Children 25 Cents. CHILDREN IN ARMS FREE.

WRITE TO THE SECRETARY FOR A CATALOGUE.

H. H. ABERNATHY, President.

A. D. Rodgers, Secretary.

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

Patents

HALF BATH LOCALS.

The following classes of local matter will be inserted at half-rate, provided the line is not over 100 words, and the matter is of a local character. The charge for each line is 10 cents per line. These rates will be strictly adhered to. Our space is our stock in trade and we cannot afford to overcharge for the use of the paper with matters of general interest.

TIME TABLE FOR TRAINS.

L. & N. Railroad.

DEPART NORTH—10:00 A. M. 10:00 P. M.
ARRIVE SOUTH—10:00 A. M. 10:00 P. M.
DEPART SOUTH—10:00 A. M. 10:00 P. M.
ARRIVE NORTH—10:00 A. M. 10:00 P. M.
DEPART NORTH—10:00 A. M. 10:00 P. M.
ARRIVE SOUTH—10:00 A. M. 10:00 P. M.
DEPART SOUTH—10:00 A. M. 10:00 P. M.
ARRIVE NORTH—10:00 A. M. 10:00 P. M.

TELEGRAPH OFFICES.

WESTERN UNION—Up stairs corner Main and Broad streets. A. H. Snyder, operator.

For Louisville, Chesapeake & Ohio

Route.

No. 1.
Lv. Louisville, Ky., 10:00 A. M.
Ar. Nashville, Tenn., 12:00 P. M.
Lv. Nashville, Tenn., 1:00 P. M.
Ar. Louisville, Ky., 3:00 P. M.
No. 2.
Lv. Louisville, Ky., 10:00 A. M.
Ar. Nashville, Tenn., 12:00 P. M.
Lv. Nashville, Tenn., 1:00 P. M.
Ar. Louisville, Ky., 3:00 P. M.

SOCIALITIES.

Miss Edith Bouliava is still very sick.

Monroe Gregory went to Louisiana yesterday.

Henry Frankel returned from Evansville yesterday.

Mr. W. T. Radford has moved his family from the country.

Miss Lillie McElwain, of Trenton, is visiting Mrs. C. W. Metcalfe.

Mrs. Sammie Holloway, who has been quite sick, is convalescent.

Col. J. M. Dodd is quite sick at his home on South Virginia street.

News, E. H. Lindsay, Ed. McCarty and C. A. Chappell spent Sunday in the city.

Mr. Geo. Hall and family have returned from St. Louis, where they have lately lived.

Joe Cowherd, of Cadiz, passed through the city en route home from Evansville Saturday.

J. E. Gossett, merchant at Herondou, went to Louisville yesterday to lay in a stock of general merchandise.

Clarence Anderson, of Hopkinsville, is visiting his grandfather, Dr.

C. H. Spliman—Harrisburg Damocrat.

Harry Clark and wife, Mrs. J. Q.

McGeehan and George Wilson left yesterday for Louisville to attend the Exposition.

Joe Frankel returned from the Eastern markets, Sunday, after making extensive purchases. His new goods will arrive this week.

Messrs. J. D. Herndon and F. N.

Smith, of Clarksville, come over on bicycles Sunday, and will appear in the bicycle race at the Driving Park.

The Wallace-Campbell wedding will be at the residence of the bride's father Mr. Jos. Campbell, this evening. Only a few relatives and immature friends will be present.

Mrs. B. F. Conlter and little daughter, who have been visiting Mrs. J. Q.

Durrott, have returned to their home in Los Angeles, Cal., accompanied by Miss Belle Moore, of this city, who will spend the winter there.

Frost Saturday Morning.

About noon Friday a dispatch was received from the signal service office predicting frost in Kentucky on the morning of the 24th. But little attention was paid to it, but the prediction was verified by the fact Saturday morning. To be sure, the frost was not a heavy one, but frost it was and it left its impress on many fields of tobacco. In low, flat places

HERE AND THERE.

Three fine milch cows for sale.

T. W. LONG.

Boarders wanted, by Mrs. Wm.

Cowan South Main St.

There are a number of cases of chills in the city.

Syniprels are scarcer than for many years, so say the pot hunters.

Mr. W. T. Radford is attending the Nashville Fair this week with a herd of his fine Holstein cattle.

A protracted meeting began at Little River church Saturday. The pastor is assisted by Rev. Mr. Porter.

Ray, J. T. Harrow, will leave to-day for Harmony, Caldwell county, where he will hold a protracted meeting.

Members of the South side Chautau-quan club will meet this afternoon at Dr. Jas. Rodman's, at four o'clock.

The frost did much damage to the tobacco along the line of the C. O. &

S. W. railroad between Nortonville and the Cumberland river.

Burnett Mason, col., who was formerly in the employ of Mr. W. B. Mason, was taken with a fit at Dawson,

Friday, and died in great agony.

The organ question, which threatened serious trouble in the Christian church, has been compromised. The organ is to be used at only one service each Sunday.

The first new hoghead of tobacco was received Saturday by Hancock, Fraser & Ragdale. It was raised in the Baltimore vicinity by Messrs.

Proff & Dullin.

The telephone is loudly demanding that a bank be started in Cadiz.

Editor Crenshaw is evidently troubled to know what to do with his surplus cash.

When you come to the races, don't forget to subscribe for the KENTUCK-

IAN before you put your money upon the winning horse, as you might not have the inclination afterward.

The Latham Guards got to Evansville too late to compete for the prizes last week but after seeing their movements on the streets the Houston management gave them $50 to give an exhibition drill.

The Jennie Holman Company will play every night this week. "Divorace" was the opening piece last night. It is a company of more than ordinary merit and will present some first-rate plays during the week.

Prices 50 and 75 cents.

Mr. E. B. Bassett left Sunday for Louisville, where he will be married to-morrow to Miss Italia Brown, daughter of Mr. Stanley E. Brown.

The ceremony will take place at the Chestnut street Methodist church.

Mr. and Mrs. Bassett will reach this city Thursday night, on the accommodation.

The Clifton Coal Co. of Manningsville, Hopkins county, filed a deed of assignment a few days ago, turning over all of its property for the benefit of its creditors. The liabilities are given at $25,000 on notes and accounts and $2,000 on mortgages, besides a bonded indebtedness of $50,- 000. The assets are sufficient to pay the debts proper. The bonds are held to be invalid because of having been issued without Legislative authority, and the holders will probably lose their money. The property has been placed in the hands of the Superintendent of the mines, who will at once sell enough property to pay the labor debts.

Will Close.

The undersigned agrees to close their storehouse on Wednesday Sept.

28, from 12 to 5 P. M., being the first

CIRCUIT COURT MATTERS.

THE COOLEY BOYS.

The case of Robt. and Leonard

Cooley, charged with feloniously breaking into a store-house, was tried

Friday and the defendants adjudged not guilty. Immediately following their acquittal the Cooleys were arrested for carrying concealed weapons and being unable to give the $100 bonds required were returned to jail.

These cases were heard the next day and dismissed.

THE MORRISON CASE.

John B. Morrison, charged with relating an officer, was tried by a jury at a fine of $100 was speedily rendered. Mr. Gordon Haskery, the deputy sheriff who was resisted, was the only witness introduced.

John B. Morrison failing and refusing to pay the costs of $19.05, in the case against him for resisting an officer, his bail bond was declared forfeited and H. Smith, his bondsman, required to appear and show cause why he should not pay the same.

Com. vs. Wm. Donaldson, obtaining money under false pretense, continued.

TWO VERY LIGHT FINES.

On a failure to plead, A. R. Perkins, charged with violating the prohibition law, was fined $50 and costs by the court.

Of the four cases against C. P. Nolan for violating prohibition law, one was tried and defendant adjudged not guilty, one was dismissed, one remanded out of court to be re-admitted to the grand jury, and the fourth was tried and defendant found guilty and fined $35 and costs, $15 less than the lowest fine fixed by the law.

DUMKY'S TRIAL.

The case of Parker McCombs, for murder, was called Saturday. The following jury was empanelled: Geo.

Ryan, D. J. McCord, J. R. Lewis,

Jack Clardy, Col. J. H. Sergeant, Zake Litchfield, Wm. Anderson, Geo.

Browder, Col. Wm. Faugh, H. H.

Hurt, Geo. W. Henderson. The evidence was heard Saturday and the jury kept together over Sunday at the Lewis House guarded by Deputy Sheriffs Goley and Cravens. Yesterday the case was argued by Broad-hitch and Bush for the defendant and the Commonwealth's Attorney for the prosecution.

The case was given to the jury yesterday afternoon, but when we went to press had not been decided.

The case of J. A. Parrish, the mur-derer of Geo. Taylor, was set for tomorrow and will come up for trial to-day.

The Fair This Week.

Everything is now in readiness for the Fair, which begins to-morrow.

The handsome grand stand is done, the surroundings have all been white-washed and everything is as neat as a new pin. The judge's stand is immediately opposite the grand stand.

The track and stand are enclosed by a solid plank fence and it is impossible for one to hinder things seen the race, or anything else. The inner gate is near the stand on the west and the gate leading around the outside of the track to the stables is on the extreme eastern side.

The front fence is an ordinary plank fence, designed simply to enclose the grounds and not to turn those who are disposed to climb over.

This space is to be used for vehicles and will be under the supervision of two special policemen. The inner gate will be kept by Geo. E. Ellis

A Well-Known Man's Testimony.

Mr. H. F. Newell is the well-known millwright who resides at Manchester, opposite Richmond. He is known all through Eastern and Southern Virginia, where he has been engaged have other disease on subjects to other families.

 (Lipps, Neumann, Lewis, Carmichael, and the other thousands. Later, Kildogers and Bowles were threatened to find a man who would recover with the timely use of PARKER'S OCEAN TONG.
 The threat proved to be a great. BOB & LONG-MARCH & Co., 441 William Street, N. Y.